

Indications Point To Huge Sesqui Parade September 2 As Highlight Of Celebration

Prospects for the Sesqui-Centennial parade here Saturday afternoon, September 2, began to take on imposing proportions here Friday evening when first reports were received at a meeting of the Sesqui's Special Events Division on marching units, floats, veterans' organizations and bands and drum corps which will be in line.

Littlestown alone will enter 13 units in the column which will move at 2:30 p.m. over the streets of Gettysburg as one of the highlights of the six-day Sesqui celebration that opens Wednesday, August 30.

Catches 20-pound Turtle In Conewago Creek At Table Rock

Samuel Shull, cook at the Ditzler restaurant in Biglerville, is going to have a rare native delicacy in his own home Sunday—turtle soup from Adams county turtle.

The Biglerville R. D. resident, who lives near VanDyke's Corners, caught a 20-pound snapping turtle Tuesday night at the breast of the dam at Table Rock.

Fishing for bass and catfish, he says he "thought I caught a whale" when the huge turtle took his line.

Residents of the Table Rock area said that the turtle has been in the water behind the dam for years and the numerous fishermen have "had hold" of the creature but none before was able to land the snapper.

Shull and his wife, Dorothy, had gone to the dam for some fishing after Shull completed work Tuesday evening. He had caught four "catfish" and then cast near the spot where the water flows over the dam. Something nibbled at his hook, nibbled again and again and finally was hooked.

Two Towns Recaptured By Yanks In East Korea

Tokyo, July 22 (AP) 22 — American troops drove the North Koreans from two strategic towns in Eastern Korea but fell back on the western Taejon front today before one arm of a vast Communist pincer movement.

Americans took over the ruins of Yongdok Friday under cover of heavy allied naval gunfire.

The town is on the east coast 25 miles north of the First Cavalry division beachhead at Pohang. It was reported destroyed by American and British Naval guns Wednesday.

Negroes Rout Invaders
Negro troops of the 25th Infantry division routed the invaders from Yechon Friday after 16 hours of artillery attack and house-to-house fighting.

Yechon is 50 miles inland and in line with the northern arm of a Red pincer aimed at cutting the U. S. rail supply line from the southeastern port of Pusan. Pusan supplies the U. S. 24th Infantry division fighting the holding war on the Taejon front.

The northern point of this pincer arm appears to be at Munyong, 20 miles northwest of newly-recaptured Yechon. There the tank-led 15th Red division was reported gathering reinforcements for a drive south to Kumchon, on the Pusan-Taejon railroad 40 miles southeast of Taejon.

The southern arm of the Communist pincer is formed by two columns striking southeast of Taejon.

Taejon Pincer Hinge

General MacArthur said one of these moved 16 miles from Kunje south to Chongup and the other advanced in a parallel line 20 miles from Chongju to Imsil. The points of the southern arms, at Chongju and Imsil, are 50 and 60 miles southwest of Taejon.

The hinge of the pincer drive is Red-held Taejon. The pressure there is greatest. U. S. troops gave up Taejon Friday after two days of heavy attack from overwhelming numbers of Red armor, infantrymen and guerrillas. They withdrew a short distance to hills southeast.

The Americans made further withdrawals to better neutral defense Friday, General MacArthur said. He said the South Korean First Corps on the American right flank backed up in the same direction at the same time.

Lull In Fighting

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson said Communist forces were active Saturday near new American positions southeast of Taejon, but there was no penetration of the American and South Korean lines.

Erickson said there was a sharp lull across the Korean battlefield. He said strengthened American forces dug into a railway line east of fallen Taejon.

Thick clouds shrouded mountain ridges after a night-long rain. American and allied air operations were stopped by the weather, which was working on the side of the North Koreans. The Reds had a whole day for regrouping for their next assault down the rail and highway corridor toward Pusan.

No Word On Gen. Dean

American patrols were probing in front of U. S. lines to detect Red movements. If the weather clears Sunday an effective air assault may slow the North Korean attack.

There was still no word of the whereabouts of Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, commander of the 24th Division, who was last reported feeding ammunition to a bazooka squad Thursday in the fierce fighting at Taejon.

Nor was there word on activities of the First Cavalry Division since the infantry outfit landed at Pohang Wednesday in the first amphibious assault landing of the Korean war.

KING LEOPOLD RETURNING IN SOME DANGER

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

King Leopold of the Belgians has won his long fight for return from exile to his throne, but it is a doubtful and perhaps even dangerous victory.

Public passions have run high in this dispute which has divided the Belgians numerically into two almost even camps. The advisory referendum held last March showed only 50 per cent of the voters wanted his return.

But Leopold insisted on claiming this as a favorable mandate, and last Thursday Parliament voted to restore him to his throne. But that vote was in effect a further warning for it came from one party—the Christian Socialists—and represented just over half the total membership of 387. The vote was 198 in his favor, all the rest of the members having walked out without voting.

Bitterly Divided

Thus Leopold returns to a country bitterly divided against itself. Recognition of this is seen in the elaborate precautions which the authorities have taken to guard against anti-Leopold demonstrations. Strong security forces have been mobilized in Belgian cities. Gendarmes specially trained for riot duty have been added to Brussels already powerful police force.

What a difference between this royal home-coming and that of Leopold's revered father, King Albert, with Queen Elizabeth and their three children, including Leopold, at the end of World War I. Then Brussels was jammed with people who crowded not only the streets, but windows, roofs and even the trees along the boulevards.

The current political situation in Belgium would be bad at any time. It's doubly bad now that Europe is in the midst of the cold-war crisis.

Cockpit of Europe

Belgium lies in the cockpit of Western Europe. It is a sentinel on the invasion highway over which aggressors through the centuries have marched their legions from the East.

Thus Belgium is a key position in the defenses of the Atlantic Pact nations. Anything which weakens Belgium as a bulwark is a threat to the security of the Western bloc of powers.

Leopold's unpopularity with many of his people arises from two causes. The main grievance lies in his surrender of the Belgian armies to the invading Germans after only 18 days of fighting in 1940. Then uncovered the Allied left flank and resulted in disaster. The king also refused to accept the advice of his ministers to go into exile with them and continue the resistance to Hitler.

Might Doom System

The other thing held against him was his marriage after the death of his wife, youthful Queen Astrid, in an automobile accident in Switzerland. Leopold married a commoner, Mlle. Baels, daughter of a former cabinet minister, and gave her the title of princess although she never has held the rank of queen. Astrid was greatly beloved by the people and they disapproved the king's second marriage.

Just what course Leopold will pursue now is a matter of much speculation. The general belief in Belgian political quarters is that he may turn his powers over to his son, Crown Prince Baudouin. By such a move he would extricate himself from what, to say the least, is a highly uncomfortable position.

Should Leopold insist on continuing to exercise the prerogatives of kingship he might create a situation which ultimately would even threaten the monarchical form of government in Belgium.

Say Valley Forge Closing Cancelled

Ft. Meade, Md., July 22 (AP)—Plans to shut down Valley Forge General hospital at Phoenixville, Pa., have been cancelled according to an announcement made by Second Army headquarters.

An army spokesman said yesterday the 1,600-bed hospital will be kept on a stand-by basis until it is determined if it is needed.

The hospital was one of several ordered closed June 30 by the Defense Department as an economy move. Since then the army has been in the process of carrying out the order.

THREE INJURED IN TWO CRASHES FRIDAY EVENING

Lyle Keller, 26, of Hampton, suffered a fractured left arm, fractured ribs and possible concussion at 8:55 o'clock Friday night when his motorcycle was struck in Hampton by a truck driven by Albert L. Thomas, 52, also of Hampton.

State police of the Gettysburg substation, who investigated the accident, said Thomas ran his truck to the left side of a highway barrier before the collision. Keller was taken to the Hanover hospital.

Two persons were injured at 5:20 o'clock Friday afternoon in an automobile collision in York Springs.

State police said a car operated by Frederick Freas, 40, of Woodbury, N. J., drove through a stop sign on the Hanover-Carlisle road and struck the car of Robert S. Martin, 21, of Honesdale, Pa., an army corporal.

Mabel E. Merrin, 45, suffered a lacerated leg and back injury, and Shirley Freas, 32, a sprained right ankle and lacerated forehead. The former was admitted to the Warner hospital. She was brought here in the Pittenturf ambulance.

Freas paid a fine and costs to Justice of the Peace F. E. Coulson, York Springs, on a stop sign violation. Damage to his car was estimated at $500, and to the Merrin car at $300.

UNGER RECEIVES AWARD AT GAP; TROOPERS HOME

Adams county's Troop A of the Pennsylvania National Guard returned this morning from two weeks of intensive training at Indiantown Gap.

The Khaki-colored jeeps, armored cars and half-tracks of the county unit began pouring into Gettysburg at 10 o'clock this morning. By noon all elements of the mechanized reconnaissance squadron troop had returned.

One of the happiest members of the outfit was Pfc. Ralph C. Unger, who won the coveted "outstanding man" award for his performance with the unit at Indiantown Gap.

The award was made at a parade formation for the 104th Mechanized Cavalry reconnaissance squadron, of which Troop A is a part, held Friday afternoon at the Gap with Brig. Gen. William S. Bailey, commanding general of the 10th Corps artillery officiating at the review.

This morning, at the armory here, the members of the troop had one of their pleasantest duties connected with the National Guard training—they received their pay checks for the two weeks' encampment.

2 COUNTIANS ARE JAILED

Two Adams county people were committed to the Franklin county jail, Chambersburg, shortly before noon Friday in default of fines and costs of prosecution and in default of bond on four charges filed by borough police before Justice of the Peace John S. Gillan.

Florence Jane Beamer, of Gettysburg, was committed in default of $500 bond for court on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and in default of $28.50 fine and costs of prosecution on a charge of driving without an operator's license.

Kermit Showers, of Aspers R. D. 1, was committed in default of $500 bond for court on a charge of permitting an intoxicated person to drive his automobile and in default of $28.50 fine and costs on a charge of permitting an unlicensed person to operate a motor vehicle.

Miss Beamer was taken into custody by Sgt. Glenn Snyder and Patrolman Lohman Miller when the officers saw her attempt to back the sedan owned by Showers from a parking stall in the southeast section of the square at 2 o'clock Friday morning. Miss Beamer reportedly stalled the motor of the car, drawing police attention to her. Showers was taken into custody at 2:30 a.m. Both were held in the county jail pending arraignment.

Meat Price Trend Is Now Downward

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—The present trend in meat is downward, says the American Meat Institute, after "panic buying" had caused some meat prices to skyrocket.

The institute said the "panic buying" started when the Korean "situation developed." It added: "Now, however, this pressure—and that caused by people who rushed to fill freezer lockers, etc.—has lessened and the present price trend is downward, especially on popular pork loins and some of the less popular but equally nutritious cuts of other meats."

The institute, which represents the nation's meat packing industry, added that "this is the season when meats always are in under-supply, so we do not know what the immediate future holds."

Predict Delay On More Arms Help

Washington, July 22 (AP)—With Congress concentrating on U. S. strength, Senator Connally (D-Texas) today predicted a delay in any Presidential request for more funds to arm the anti-Communist nations.

Connally told reporters he doesn't expect any immediate appeal from the President for funds beyond the $1,222,500,000 Congress has authorized for foreign military assistance. "They'll have the billion to start on and that should take care of the problem for a while," the Texas Senator said.

President Truman has indicated he will seek more funds—possibly up to $5,000,000,000 to equip friendly countries with the modern arms they would need to counter a Communist military thrust that might be made elsewhere while the fighting is going on in Korea.

Interstate League
(By The Associated Press)

The Wilmington Blue Rocks still hold onto a slim one game margin in the interstate league. But they'll have to beat runnerup Hagerstown today to stop on top.

Johnny Walz tossed a four hitter last night (Friday) as the Blue Rocks pounded two York pitchers for a 6 to 1 triumph at York. After Walz gave up a pair of doubles for a first inning run and walked the next batter, he retired 25 of the next 27 men to face him. He struck out nine.

Second place Hagerstown hung on by winning a wild contest over the Trenton Giants 14 to 13. The win snapped a five game losing streak for Hagerstown. Heinbaugh singled the winning run across with the bases loaded in the last of the ninth.

Allentown rallied to score in the ninth inning to make it two straight over the Sunbury Athletics 5 to 5. The win was Allentown's fifth 1½ games of fourth place Harrisburg.

Harrisburg was whitewashed 7 to 0 by Don Hall, young Lancaster right-hander. Hall hurled a three hitter as his mates smashed out 13 hits for seven runs of Harrisburg's Ed Vahely.

YANKS SMASH TIGERS 14-5; MIZE IS STAR
By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Big John Mize, who a short while ago was on the brink of drawing his release, has hit a fantastic .867 for his last four games. He began to purr against St. Louis Tuesday, and has banged out 13 hits in 15 trips—including five home runs—since then.

Mize's amazing performance has raised his batting average 119 points from .258 to .377.

Mize ascended the heights of his comeback last night as he belted out two homers, a pair of singles and drove in five runs to lead the New York Yanks to a smashing 14-5 victory over the pace-setting Detroit Tigers in the opener of a vital three-game series at the Yankee Stadium.

The overwhelming triumph, witnessed by 62,823 fans, cut the Tigers' lead over the Yanks to 1½ games. The Yanks can assume the lead by winning today and Sunday.

The pennant race in the National league also tightened up as the Philadelphia Phils tied the St. Louis Cardinals for the lead.

The Phils, behind the eight-hit pitching of rookie Bubba Church, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1. Eddie Waitkus scored three of the victors' runs and Dick Sisler drove home two. Ralph Kiner accounted for Pittsburgh's run with his 28th homer in the eighth inning.

St. Louis dropped a 5-4, 11-inning decision to the New York Giants. An error by Eddie Miller allowed Alvin Dark to score from third with the winning run. Stan Musial sent the game into overtime with a two-out homer in the seventh, his 12th, of Sal Maglie, who went the distance for the Giants. Cloyd Boyer went all the way for the Cards.

The third-place Boston Braves remained a game off the pace by dropping a 4-3, 13-inning game to the Chicago Cubs. Bill Serena singled home Andy Pafko from second with the payoff run, spoiling Johnny Sain's bid for his 13th victory.

Brooklyn's fourth-place Dodgers moved to within two games of the co-leaders by trouncing the Cincinnati Reds, 7-1. Veteran Preacher Roe tamed the Redlegs on eight hits to pick up his 12th victory.

Little Con Marrero prevented Cleveland from gaining ground in the American league chase as he pitched the Washington Senators to a 3-2 victory over the third-place Indians.

Boston's powerful Red Sox pounded the St. Louis Browns into the dust, 7-4, and the Philadelphia Athletics edged the Chicago White Sox, 7-6, in 10 innings.

"Why not ask the baseball commissioner if there are any investigations of clubs suspected of dealing under the table on bonuses?"

P. S.: We've heard several hints from baseball men that "other" clubs might be guilty. "How many colleges received NCAA reprimands for dickering with St. Louis university football players after the Billiken grid team folded?"

P. S. No. 2: We didn't think the St. Louis grid players were that good. . . . If anybody knows the answers, we're listening. But its obvious that A. B. Chandler isn't going to advertise that his sleuths are after someone and the NCAA prefers to do its reprimanding in private.

Yanks Near Lead
The overwhelming triumph, witnessed by 62,823 fans, cut the Tigers' lead over the Yanks to 1½ games. The Yanks can assume the lead by winning today and Sunday.

The pennant race in the National league also tightened up as the Philadelphia Phils tied the St. Louis Cardinals for the lead.

The Phils, behind the eight-hit pitching of rookie Bubba Church, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-1. Eddie Waitkus scored three of the victors' runs and Dick Sisler drove home two. Ralph Kiner accounted for Pittsburgh's run with his 28th homer in the eighth inning.

The two banners which had been carried in the street parade before the exercises were placed in their permanent positions on the bench by members of the color guard representing four veterans' organizations. The presentation speech was made by Lloyd C. Keefe, and the colors were accepted by President Judge W. C. Sheely.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
LAFACADIO HEARN

One of the strangest of all literary figures was that of Lafacadio Hearn, whose hundredth anniversary is celebrated this year. He was born on one of the islands of Greece. His mother was Greek, but his father was English-Irish. While in school in England he suffered the loss of one eye in an athletic game, and the other eye was myopic. But from this single eye, from which he had only 30 per cent vision, he achieved an enormous amount of work.

He was an unhappy wanderer during most of his early life, eccentric, moody, and highly sensitive. Going into a Cincinnati newspaper office searching for a job, he left a sample of his writing and was immediately hired. An unfortunate situation forced him to move to New Orleans, where he did notable work on the Item and States, and where he wrote his first books. He loved strangely written books, and forever sought them out.

Hearn took a trip to the West Indies and wrote one of the finest books upon his observations. Later he went to Japan, where he carried on further writings, confining most of his work to Chinese and Japanese subjects. He became famous as a professor of English literature in the University of Tokyo. He married a Japanese woman and had four sons. He died in Japan in 1904, and there is a memorial building to his honor there. He was none too popular with the Japanese though his students loved him.

Few writers, in the century Hearn lived in, had a style so simple and yet so artistic. He was always striving for perfection. He was widely read, but managed to lose most of his intimate friends. Yet he was admired, and his books today are prized collector items in their first editions. In many ways his literary career resembles that of Poe.

Few, if any, writers have interpreted modern Japan to the world as intelligently as did this misunderstood genius. It has been stated that Hearn knew the Japanese better than they knew themselves. And yet, though he embraced their religion and dress, during his lifetime they hardly accepted him, excepting as a brilliant foreigner. Lafacadio Hearn is well worth studying today, and his wonderful style is fascinating reading.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE BETTER WORLD
The better world that is to be
There's none of us may live to see.

The task is ours to lead the way;
To work for it from day to day,
And though we may not reach the goal
To strive for it with heart and soul.

'Twill be the dream when we are gone
For all who come to follow on.
And glad am I that this is so,
For should a finished world they know,
No goal to reach, no wrong to right,
More terrible would be their plight.

They'd hate us should we leave behind
No secrets left for them to find;
No bridge to build, no shaft to sink;
No further need for them to think;
No chance to fashion something new
And nothing left for them to do.

Against the cares that men rehearse
I still can picture something worse:
A world complete and standing still;
No need for courage, strength or skill;
No chance for youth to prove its worth;
No further need for men on earth.

Figures Tell the Trends
Some facts about the current cars may have escaped your notice, and I believe they are extremely interesting from a trend standpoint. One is that there are 38 American chassis models with horsepower from 100 to 149. This is an increase of 6 over 1949. In the still higher bracket there are eight chassis models with motors developing from 150 to 199 hp. Four of the American engines still are rated under 75 hp. and eight have cast iron or steel alloy pistons even though 56 have pistons of aluminum alloy. Oddly enough, the highest standard compression ratio for any American passenger car is found on the smallest. It is 8 to 1. The highest optional ratio is found on another of the small motors. The average optional compression ratio is 7.40 to 1.

Take It Easy
It is not common knowledge that when the accelerator is pressed way down there is such a marked drop in intake manifold vacuum that the carburetor's power jet comes into action, and that is why so much gas is wasted in unwillingness to take it easy. Such a jet or metering rod is for high speed or steep hill performance. In addition to this waste, which incidentally runs from 15 to 25 per cent for the average car, there is the increase in gas consumption, from action of the acceleration pump. To check both forms of waste, learn to feed gas as slowly as possible. Use a pre-loaded coil spring on the throttle rod to serve as a check on your habit of stepping on the gas unnecessarily.

Too Many Oil Shy
To the motorist who expressed the opinion that fellows at filling stations could easily misread the oil dip stick so as to sell unsuspecting customers a lot of extra motor oil, I countered with the view that perhaps it would be better for all concerned if they did. My experience is that too many lads are inclined to check oil and report "all's well" rather than bother to go through the detail of selling a quart of oil. I am, of course, excepting the lady who still felt the engine didn't need oil even though the attendant insisted that the engine was five quarts shy. That's something for the filling stations to work on.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:
"If the brakes develop a tendency toward squealing don't make the mistake of deciding that the drums are too thin or that rivets are necessarily scoring the drums. There's a good chance that the brake shoes merely needs adjusting. You can make sure of this by using the brakes more vigorously for a test."

"If, while testing, the squealing disappears you can be sure it has been due to poor equalization and can be corrected by a more careful adjustment of the shoes. The squealing won't disappear with vigorous brake application if due to the other conditions. Incidentally, for several makes of cars there are new replacement anchor pins which allow the shoes to float and to have a certain amount of self-energizing."

Idea From Automatics
Some car owners look upon new improvements in cars as something to be desired and to enjoy only when the time comes to acquire a new car incorporating them. Others are smart enough to take a few pointers from these improvements, and use their conclusions immediately. I am thinking especially of automatic transmissions which effect a certain amount of fuel savings by the simple process of shifting quickly. There is no lost motion, no wasting of momentum while going through the gears. It's a gentle hint to any driver to speed up his manual shifting.

Keeping the distributor head clean so that there will be less chance of moisture allowing high tension current to short across it is only part of the story. Cases have been found where too much of this shorting actually cuts a path across the plastic cap, this path providing a special repository for dirt. Not many motorists realize that if the spark plugs have a too wide gap there may be shorting across the cap. Dirt also causes shorting across the top of the coil because of collection of moisture from condensation.

Three To Remember
It may not seem to matter if the car's electrical system is so impaired that there is a drop from 6 to 4 volts available for the headlights, but this loss becomes an actual drop in lighting candlepower from 28 to 14 at the lamps themselves.

No matter how often you had to pump on the accelerator pedal to get a good start in cold weather al-ways try to start without this aid in warm weather. Every jab on the pedal wastes gasoline.

You'll save oil when going downhill on compression if you occasionally open the throttle. But always close it slowly.

For The Scrapbook
It's a good idea to pour little hot wax or paraffin into those places on the distributor cap into which the ends of the spark plug wires fit. The idea is to check water leakage and also to keep the wires from working up and thus breaking contact.

Since it makes a difference which side of a battery is grounded you may some day find it necessary to determine the polarity of the battery after having removed it for charging or when putting in a new one. Simply place the two wires from the battery into a potato that has been cut in half. There will be a green stain on the potato around the positive wire. Keep the ends of the wires about an inch apart.

Meaning Of Exhaust Noise
What are you hearing from the muffler these days? Is there a lot of after-firing? Is some of this pretty sharp?

If so, it's a gentle tip that the carburetor mixture is too lean, or that the valves are not seating too well. Anything that permits unburned mixture to get into the exhaust system will invite muffler explosions. Faulty spark plugs are also under suspicion in cases of this sort. Assuming you have not tampered with the carburetor the leaner mixture may be due to air leaking into the intake through a bad gasket or a loose union between carburetor and intake manifold.

It's A Motor Question
Q. What would cause white corrosive substance to form around the battery holder. I have tried cleaning and repainting these nearby metal parts but the corrosion always starts in again? H. N.

A. The battery probably is being overfilled, causing acid to spill out even with normal gassing.

Q. What would cause almost constant ping-pong even when the timing is right? The engine always has had a tendency to knock, but it has been getting steadily worse. W. R.

A. I would take the head off and, when cleaning off the carbon, check to see if there is a rough spot. There have been cases of a too sharp edge of metal becoming hot and thus acting like a spark plug to cause pre-ignition.

Q. My car is an old one with the gas cap on the right side. It spills gasoline whenever the car is parked where the curb is lower than the crown of the road. Previously it used to do this only when the tank was filled, but now it does it with the tank three-quarters full. N. F. G.

A. I think you will find that the gas gauge is inaccurate, and that there will be no loss of gasoline if the tank isn't full.

Q. What would cause my car to pull to one side when the brakes are applied. At first I suspected that the brakes were the cause of this, but a complete brake and drum job has failed to check this action. We have even replaced the fluid thinking the old fluid was of poor quality. The knee action system is in good condition and properly lubricated. Tires are new, balanced and of similar treads. M. M. G.

A. In a case of this sort the situation calls for a front-end alignment job. You will probably find that either there is insufficient caster or that the caster is unequal.

Q. The headlights of my car have a funny way of flickering when the car is picking up speed at night. I notice this going through the gears. Naturally I've had all the wiring carefully checked, including the grounding of the lamps themselves. L. S. D.

A. This sometimes happens. It is due to the cut-out for the generator being sluggish in closing its points.

Q. After stopping the engine the carburetor floods. I can always smell gasoline when the car is garaged. S. McB.

A. This is one of the older carburetors without an anti-percolator. Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. NO FANFARE AS KING LEOPOLD COMES HOME

Brussels, Belgium, July 22 (AP)—Leopold III, king of the Belgians, came home from exile today.

There was not one cheer, nor one single handclap as the monarch, whose surrender to the Germans in 1940 led to a political fight which has split Belgium in two, landed at heavily-guarded Haren military airport. Only a handful of early risers, besides the 8,000 military guards, were present.

He arrived in a twin-engine military plane at 7:19 a.m. (1:19 a.m. EST) with Premier Jean Duvieusart, leader of the Social Christian (Catholic) party which led the fight to reverse parliament's 1945 vote exiling Leopold. Crown Prince Baudouin was in a second plane which landed a few minutes later.

No Demonstrations
Threatened demonstrations by violently anti-Leopold Socialists did not materialize, possibly because the time of his arrival was much a closely guarded secret.

Leopold has scheduled a conference with his cabinet this afternoon at his palace in Laeken. News of his future plans probably will be announced then.

Last April the king offered to turn over the throne, at least temporarily, to the crown prince if he were allowed to return briefly to Belgium. Many persons believe that is the course he will follow now that the preliminary condition has been met. Many observers believe this would satisfy the Socialist opposition and ease the serious split in the country.

As the king and crown prince stepped out of their planes, bugles sounded and a military band burst into the national anthem "Brabanconne." The music, a few handshakes from government officials, and the salutes of the men assigned to guard him were all the welcome Leopold got after his six years absence from his homeland.

New York, July 22 (AP)—Ed Wynn's new television assignment transferring him from CBS to NBC will set him up as one of four headline acts in another rotating series the network has on the fire for the fall. This removes him as a possibility for the projected Fred Allen-Eddie Cantor series on Sunday nights, because he will be on Wednesdays.

Along with Wynn, Jimmy Durante is a prospect, with NBC known to have been negotiating with him. Durante closed his radio series last spring.

Other possibilities are Danny Kaye and Danny Thomas. The hour is to be 8 to 7, just ahead of the oldest dramatic series in TV, the Television Theater. Each star would appear every fourth week, with Wynn leading the parade.
